POULTRY SHOW.

Thursday the Second Annual Show of the Wauseon Poultry and Pet Stock Association was in full swing and the prediction that this show would be larger and better than last year was fully justified. The Grain Show also registers a success with twenty-two exhibitors and about fourteen different varieties of grain including six varieties of corn. Last year there were thirty-six exhibitors of poultry and three hundred and fifty-four birds. This year there are forty-two exhibitors and four hundred birds, counting the exhibitors of grain there are sixty-four exhibitors this year. The exhibits are all nicely arranged and there are some especially fine specimens shown. The show will continue until Saturday night and those who fail to see this show will certainly miss something worth while.

The State Exhibit and Poultry demonstration is worth a long trip and much time and money in itself. Mr. C. Wiesenberger representing the Ohio State Agricultural College is in charge of the exhibit and seems to take real pleasure in explaining the various features of his exhibit, which is for the purpose of encouraging better breeding, better housing and better sanitation in poultry raising, these three things says Mr. Wiesenberger will mean health and profit in the poultry business. Fulton county ranks second in the average amount invested in poultry, the amount being $53.90 per farm, and third in income $147.50 per farm. An average of 90 birds are kept on every farm in this county. Williams county ranks first in investment, $54.00 per farm, and Henry first in income, $156.50 per farm.

The exhibit itself must be seen to be appreciated it certainly is of great practical value to all those who are interested in raising poultry. Mr. Gearheart of Wooster Experiment Station arrived Thursday morning to judge the grain, his time was limited, having to leave at noon Thursday, but he stayed long enough to demonstrate his expert knowledge of grain. Mr. E. L. Barrett completed the judging of the poultry Thursday.

We shall publish a full list of exhibitors and premiums awarded next week. The State Poultry Exhibit will have to be moved Saturday afternoon and it is especially urged that all who are interested in better poultry and larger profits from poultry shall visit the exhibit on Friday afternoon and evening and as early as possible on Saturday. One of the features of this exhibit is the model poultry farm of seven acres which no one who is interested in poultry should miss.

She was followed by Miss Lela Eldredge the bridesmaid who wore a gown of light blue crepe de chine, carrying an arm bouquet of pink roses.

The bride in white crepe de chine and shadow lace, and carrying a bouquet of brides roses with shower of valley lilies, was met at the foot of the stairs by her groom, Mr. A. L. K. Ham who gave her in marriage, the Rev. Mr. Miller of Tedrow officiating, using the ring ceremony.
